In the tab 'Further information', you will need to choose whether you would like to attend the University's French courses, which are offered to all international students. There are two types of courses: a full-time one-week intensive course offered at the beginning of each semester, and an extensive course spread on the whole semester with classes a few hours every week. There are different groups adapted to each level.

If the period of your mobility allows it, we recommend you to enroll in at least one of these courses, even if you have a good command of the French language already: it is an excellent way to meet other international students and therefore foster your integration. The extensive course will also allow you to get 3 additional ECTS credits, subject to the validation of the course and your attendance at classes.

You will receive specific information about the dates later on. The intensive course is scheduled before the classes start at the faculty (with a few exceptions), however if you have a clerkship scheduled that week, you will not be able to attend the intensive French course.
